NEITHER DEAD, NOR SLEEPING

According to new arrivals in the town, Globe is the worst knocked city in Arizona. All over the territory the hummers are being worn out on Globe and anvil choruses have been organized to chant of its fall. People who were intending to come to Globe have been told that the town was on the hummer, at the bottom of the toboggan slide, at the ground convection of the greased pole; that it was leader than the Populist party, flatter than Taft's boom, and that there was no more left of it than of the rose of last June. Plucked like a flower in its prime, Globe went down like the late lamented Mr. McGinty, and would never more return. It's so sad too, just as Globe was becoming one of the leading cities of the Southwest.

In the face of all this, it takes a brave man to continue his trip to Globe and when he gets here, he is invariably surprised to see the large spark of life which remains in the corpse. His first thought is that if Globe is really a dead one, it's the most exceedingly realistic and vivid imitation of the living thing he has ever laid eyes on. We may have been bumped on the financial "belter-skelter" but we didn't spend any great period of time in nursing the bumps. The slump in copper and the financial stringency have been forgotten and as it did before "the big thing came off."

The Phoenix Republican conceded that President Roosevelt made "an earnest stand at his duty as he saw it" in sending troops to Goldfield, but spoils even the doubtful compliment by asserting that the countermanding of his order would leave him open to a charge of "unfixedness of purpose." Regarding the latter belief, it looks just the opposite to us. No purpose could be more fixed than that of the president that the troops must leave on next Monday.

Funny how so many people are ready to knock something they know nothing about and how much more willing is the ear into which a knock is poured, than a boost. Strange, how it is taken for granted that a knock is the truth and how a boost usually meets with mistrust and disbelief, on the part of the hearer who suspects ulterior motives on the part of the booster.

Well it seems that after all, and in spite of the calamity howlers, Santa Claus did not have to go into the hands of a receiver. After such a Christmas day as our recent one, we have more to be thankful for than we had on Thanksgiving day.

There is nothing really serious the matter with the country. We have been feeding largely on copper prosperity and it gave us a slight attack of pneumonia poisoning, which is never fatal when the proper remedies are immediately applied.

Judging from the advance intimations in the way of good resolutions for the new year, it is evident that not only ordinary repair work but considerable bracing will be required on the water wagon.

A miner from Arizona blew out the gas in a Los Angeles hotel and almost crossed the great divide by so doing. It's a safe bet though, that he couldn't be persuaded to purchase a gold brick.

IN ARIZONA

Francis J. Henry, the noted graft prosecutor is due in Tucson on New Year's day.

The Santa Fe railroad will build a new townsite of the Colorado Indian reservation in Yuma county.

Wickenburg is excited over the prospect of the Vulture mine soon resuming operations.

Albert Steinfeld of Tucson who sued L. Zeckendorf for $20,000, which he claimed was due him for the sale of ore from the Omega mine was awarded $7,094 by the jury.

The grand jury refused to bring a true bill against District Attorney Shelby in Cochise county, holding that the charges of Examiner Foster were not borne out by the evidence.

"The Plant World," a botanical magazine, will hereafter be published at Tucson instead of Denver, the plant having been moved to the old village.

For grabbing $2 which he had put up for a bet, that was lost Antonio Ochoa went to jail at Prescott. The judge told him he wasn't a sport.

Two new stamp mills are to be erected by mining companies in the Congress district in Yavapai county.

Mrs. Nabor Pacheco, wife of the Pima county sheriff, her cousin and daughter had a narrow escape from death or serious injury in a runaway at Tucson, Sunday. Both women were thrown from the buggy and stunned. The little daughter was tossed from the vehicle and escaped unscathed.

The Arizona Democrat was awarded the Maricopa county printing. The Saturday Review was the only other bidder, but could not connect owing to the fact that it was a weekly paper.

Albert Arviso and Quong Wu have been held to the grand jury at Phoenix for robbing the New York store.

By suing the Wells Fargo company Mrs. W. H. Hurst of Bisbee has recovered $20 for failure to receive a Christmas present sent by express a year ago.

Jesus Fernandez, a Mexican workman, fell 75 feet through the elevator shaft of the Copper Queen warehouse in Bisbee Sunday morning and was instantly killed.

A newly arrived matador from Mexico tried to arrange for a bullfight in Tucson until he learned that it was illegal.

Considerable mining activity is reported from the Jerome district.

The one year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Cooley was drowned in an irrigating ditch at Mesa.

Some one fired a shot through the window of the Santa Fe ticket office at Phoenix and Agent Dickinson had a harrow escape.

Mrs. Frank Paine of Phoenix expostulated with her husband for playing poker and he threatened to kill her if she didn't "dry up." Then Mrs. Paine gave away the fellow that operated the blind tiger.

The Della Pringle stock company closed an extended engagement at the Dreamland theater last night with a repetition of "The Parish Priest" to a house that was large and appreciative as those of other nights. "The Parish Priest" is the strongest play in the repertoire of the company and it is exceptionally well handled. Mr. Hogan in the role made famous by Daniel Sully, was at his best last night and seldom has there been a better piece of talent seen on a local stage. In the comedy part Mr. Kelly made his usual hit and the other parts were equally well taken.

The company gave two performances on Christmas to record houses, that of the afternoon, when the "Chorus Girl" was repeated to the largest matinee crowd in the history of the house, and the evening performance to a house that was even larger than that of last Saturday night, which had the record for four days only. The play Christmas night was "The Outcast," which, although it had been played here before, was entirely pleasing to the large crowd. Miss Pringle as the blind girl was splendid, as was Miss McConnell as the "villainess," but the real honors were carried off by Grace Hamilton as Aunt Dinah and John T. Hopkins as Ezekiel Morse, the murderous miser, who killed or tried to kill one or two in each act. Mr. Hopkins' work was very clever and his efforts were well applauded.

General regret is felt by Globe theatergoers at the departure of the Pringles. They are as clever a bunch of stage people as ever came to Globe with a "rep" company and they made many friends while here. This morning they will leave for Phoenix, where Miss Pringle has leased the Olympic theater for stock performances.

Great Hit at the Iris.
A clever bagpuncher, an excellent sketch team and a six-year-old boy comedian combine to give patrons of the Iris the best show that theater has as yet had. H. J. Woods, who manipulates the inflated bugs, is great, punching from one to three of them continuously, with hands, head and feet. Franklyn and Lyndon do a singing comedy sketch entitled "The Prima Donna and the eon" that is being well received nightly. Franklyn is clever in black face and the lady is a high class vocalist.

One of the prettiest pieces of home talent ever shown in Globe was that provided by Billy Cummings in his production of "Mamma's Boy" in which he is assisted by Globe children, whom he trained for the occasion. Little Dudley Ford, who is only six years old and a born comedian, made a great hit with his acting and singing and little May Sprecher won applause by her singing. Ten small boys make up the remainder of the juvenile company. The bill has packed every house during the last two nights and will be given again tonight at both performances.

At the Alexander.
A moving picture showing President Roosevelt's visit at St. Louis is the feature of the present bill at the Alexander. In addition to the pictures, Edna MacDonald sings "The Last Rose of Summer" and the Sweetest Song of All," and Conley and Lee do a clever black face sketch.

"The Sunny Side of Broadway" at Dreamland.
On January 8 and 9 theater goers of this city will be offered the musical sensation of the day, the Irish American comedy "The Sunny Side of Broadway," over which New York and Boston critics have grown enthusiastic and written in the most eulogistic manner. It did not seem possible at the beginning of the career of "The Sunny Side of Broadway," when it was first produced, that any new organization could come into the field and at once assume the lead, and be unanimously called the best musical performance of the season. Yet such a thing has actually come to pass, and today "The Sunny Side of Broadway" and Murray and Mack in the principal roles are placed by the press and public of every city, so far visited in the proud and exalted position, and without a single exception, the claims advanced by their admirers are found to be true and well founded.

The company numbers in all forty people, of this number being a chorus of handsome, talented and shapely singing girls.

The production is complete in every detail. Massive scenic sets, and panoramic and light effects are carried for the entire production, which ensures a performance beyond the ordinary musical show.

There is something about Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup that makes it different from others, as it causes a free yet gentle action of the bowels through which the cold is forced out of the system. At the same time it heals irritation and allays inflammation of the throat and lungs. It is pleasant to take. Children like it. Contains no opiates nor narcotics. Sold by Hanna's Drug Store.
